

You're invited to participate in our new research study.

SSR
Safe Student Reports

 NCSBN
Leading Regulatory Excellence

NCSBN invites you to join our new research study, Safe Student Reports (SSR). The SSR is a national web-based network for anonymous reporting of student errors and near misses.

SSR

Safe Student Reports

“ It creates a movement with forward-thinking schools who demonstrate a concern for quality and safety and who want to use data to improve how they teach students.”

– Joanne Disch, PhD, RN, FAAN

The research study gives nursing programs the ability to securely analyze their own data, while also being able to compare their program against the de-identified national aggregate data.

Benefits of the SSR research study include:

- Reports about the numbers and types of errors and near misses that occur in your program—only your program will see these reports;
- Semi-annual reports from NCSBN on the aggregate numbers and types of errors and near misses, so that you can compare them with your program reports; and
- The opportunity to collaborate, on quarterly conference calls, with a network of colleagues who are interested in patient safety and just culture in schools of nursing

For the purposes of this study, NCSBN has obtained a Certificate of Confidentiality from the National Institutes of Health (NIH), which means the data collected during this study cannot be disclosed to anyone who is not connected with the research.

Visit the SSR webpage (www.ncsbn.org/safe-student-reports.htm) or email us at SSR@ncsbn.org for further information on how to join this groundbreaking research study.

NCSBN
Leading Regulatory Excellence

111 E. Wacker Drive, Ste. 2900
Chicago, IL 60601

